

TRAINING – A STRATEGY FOR SUCCESS

Peter J. ABLETT

The National Training Centre for Scientific Support to Crime Investigation, Durham, United Kingdom

ABSTRACT: Training is critical to the success of forensic investigation. To use forensic science effectively we need to develop forensic practitioners with the right attitude, have the right knowledge and skills and be in the right place and the right time. Partnership and collaboration between the practitioner, employer and training provider are essential to achieve this aim.

KEY WORDS: Training; Education; Experts.

Problems of Forensic Sciences, vol. XLVI, 2001, 13–13
Not received until 30 November 2001